THE NAPOLEONIC WARS 1804-1815
THE FRENCH ARMY

The French Army under Napoleon the first presents the most colorful scene of any period. We have tried to produce as many different scenes and uniforms as possible—some of which we feel is necessary to give a true representation. Our listing of the French Army is divided into two sections, the first being Napoleon, the Generals and the many units of the Imperial Guard, followed by the second section comprising the main French Army.

FOREIGN REGIMENTS IN FRENCH SERVICE

Foreign Regiments in Napoleon's Army played a very important part, and whilst the basic cut of the uniform was obviously French, each regiment prided itself on having a totally different uniform colour, by which they announced their identity.

The most colourful branch of French Cavalry consisted of 36 Regular Regiments, numbered from 1 to 36, between 1800-1815, of which each regiment wore a distinctive uniform colour. When ordering, please state which regimental number is required. Apart from these we also list the temporary Hussar formations, which wore different uniforms from the regular Regiments. Unless otherwise stated, each Regiment can be represented in the following figures:

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION 1792–1804
AND THE CAMPAIGN IN EGYPT 1798–1801

Last but not least we have pleasure in presenting a French Soldier of the Revolution.
This uniform, as seen in many paintings and has been reproduced faithfully, wearing the tricolors of the hastily raised National Army. The figure is wearing coat, striped trousers and a cockade, and holding his rifle. A sword in his hand, in long-stroking hair completes the figure. We have enlarged this figure with a collection of figures which show the well-known characteristics of the French Revolutionary period.

SOLDIER OF THE NAPOLeONIC WARS 1804–1815
THE NAPOLEONIC WARS 1804–1815
THE EUROPEAN ALLIES OF FRANCE

The European Allies of France were separate states allied mainly by Napoleon's relatives. Their armies constituted a large part of the Grande Armée which invaded Russia in 1812. Their uniforms made a striking contrast against the blue of the French.

THE GREAT DUCHY OF WARSAW

This state was created by Napoleon in 1807. The characteristic headgear of the Polish Army, called "Caps", not only made the soldier distinctive but eventually found its way into most other armies as the famous Lancer cap.

Note on British General Officers and Staff.
As we cannot possibly list all British General Officers and their A.D.C.s, we have only mentioned the names above to portray distinctive types of uniforms. From the types quoted, any British General Officers in full dress or in distinctive Regimental uniform of all branches of cavalry, with their full complement of cuirasses, can be supplied.

BRITISH CAVALRY 1806-1815

The British Cavalry is listed in each distinctive branch. Apart from the ranks mentioned below, we can supply Surgeons for each Regiment, which we have not listed separately in order to save space. The groups are arranged by their uniforms.

Household Cavalry

British Household Cavalry were fighting regiments and their helmets were quite distinctive from other Heavy Cavalry Regiments.

Light Dragons

The British Cavalry was numbered consecutively from number 13 to number 25 irrespective of their branches; that is why Regiments of Light Dragons follow the before-mentioned Dragon Regiments with the number 7 up to number 23. As further guidance we would point out that the dress of the Light Dragons, which consisted of a tightly-fitted jacket and a fur-crested helmet (sometime known as the "Harleian" helmet) was changed approximately 1811-1813 into a quilted distinctive jacket with hussar-style plastron and shako. We have incorporated both types of uniform in our range.

 Hussars

Approximately 1806 it was decided to follow the general fashion of other European armies of that period by exchanging the fur-trimmed helmet of Light Dragoons for a busby, and the additional fur-trimmed and laced jacket, thereby creating the famous Hussar. Four Regiments were singled out for this purpose and although retaining their numbers and designation of Light Dragoons they were called as follows:

7th or Queen’s Own Hussars
10th or Prince of Wales’ Own Hussars
15th or the King’s Hussars
18th Hussars

Of each of these four regiments we supply the following:

LIGHT DRAGOONS
The British Cavalry was numbered consecutively from number 7 to number 25 irrespective of their branch. This is why Regiments of Light Dragoons follow the above-mentioned Dragon Regiments with the number 7 up to number 25. As further guidance, we would point out that the dress of the Light Dragoons, which consisted of a tightly-laced jacket and a fur-crowned helmet (sometimes known as the "Hastings" helmet) was changed approximately 1811 to 1812 into a quilted distinct jacket with buttoned-back plastron and shako. We have incorporated both types of uniform in our range.

 Hussars

Approximately 1806 it was decided to follow the general fashion of other European armies of that period by exchanging the fur-trimmed helmet of Light Dragoons for a busby, and the additional fur-trimmed and laced jacket, thereby creating the famous Hussars. Four Regiments were singled out for this purpose and although retaining their numbers and designation of Light Dragoons they were called as follows:
7th or Queen's Own Hussars
10th or Prince of Wales' Own Hussars
15th or the King's Hussars
18th Hussars

Of each of these four regiments we supply the following:

BRITISH ARTILLERY

British Horse Artillery was dressed very much as Light Cavalry and their uniforms were most distinctive. The Rocket Troop was the first of its kind in any army. The uniform of the British Foot Artillery was similar in that of infantry, but was of a distinctive blue.

ROYAL FOOT GUARDS

Three fighting Regiments of Royal Foot Guards were in existence at this period - 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Their dress differed little from each other except by the spotting of buttons. When in action their dress was similar to that worn by infantry regiments of the Line, their tall bonnets being reserved for Parade and full dress. Their service dress headgear was exchanged in 1812, along with the rest of the Army. Our figures incorporate all changes of uniform.

BRITISH INFANTRY OF THE LINE

The Line Infantry of this period underwent one major change of dress in 1812, which we have incorporated in our figures. The main branches of British infantry are Infantry of the Line, Light Infantry, Fusiliers, Highlanders and Elite Regiments. Each branch wore a distinctive uniform and is listed separately.

State Forces

Apart from the Regular Cavalry each of the larger Indian States maintained their own State Forces, which were most elaborately uniformed in full dress and make the most colourful display imaginable, as each State prescribed a different uniform.

THE GERMAN ARMY 1888 - 1914

The German Army prior to World War I consisted of the several States of Prussia, Bavaria, Saxony, Wurttemberg, Baden, Hesse, Mecklenburg and many smaller States. Each of these States retained their own and varied individual differences of uniform, which helped to make the pre-war German Army so colourful. As it is impossible to list all and every regiment and branch of the various area, please bear in mind when ordering that our figures are designed to fit every State and Contingent. For example, where we list "Infantry" or "Lancers", we mean Prussian, Bavarian, and so on.

MEDIEVAL KNIGHTS MOUNTED ON HORSEBACK

Prices for these figures are quoted on request, since they vary considerably according to the amount of heraldic painting required and the degree of extra animation involved. These figures are mounted on warhorses with hand-cast furnishings, armlets, plates, etc.

In view of the large variety of knights available on horseback, we list only a portion of our range. Customers requiring a figure not listed are asked to write to us giving full details of their wants.

JAPANESE SAMURAI, MOUNTED
Jockey mounted on Racehorse feet barefoot with two horses and accoutrements

Practically all the figures in our range can be supplied mounted on horseback (at the prices shown in our list relating to mounted figures).

Figures on horseback can be made in virtually any pose desired and on a variety of horses -
a few examples being as follows:-

FIGURES IN PARADE, COMBAT, OR CASUAL ATTITUDES ON TROTTING, STANDING, WALKING, BAYING, GALLOPING, LEAPING HORSES.

FIGURES STANDING OVER DEAD HORSES, STANDING TO HORSE'S HEADS, FEEDING HORSES FROM BUCKET, TOPPING FROM THE EARS OF WOUNDED OR FALLING HORSES.

FIGURES LEADING HORSES BY THE EAGLE EAGLE), OR LEADING PACK AND ARTILLERY MULES AND CARRIAGES.

By using combinations of our special artillery team components, it is possible to supply complete mounted gun teams of virtually every European army for the period of the Napoleonist
Wars, such as the ROYAL HORSE ARTILLERY,
NAPOLEONIC FRENCH GRENADIER HORSE ARTILLERY,
MUSIGNAN AND FRENCH MOUNTED ARTILLERY etc.

These components comprise the following:-
